

TITLE OF THE INVENTION

Radio LAN Master Station System

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A radio LAN master station system which provides long distance communication and suffers from small interference by another system located inside and/or outside of a service area comprises a transceiver, and a plurality of directivity antennas each directed to respective section with some angular spacing, through a power distributor which couples said transceiver with said antennas. Polarization plane of any antenna is orthogonal to polarization plane of an adjacent antenna.

(Fig.2)

1000300,022702